Eric N. Losey

MEMBER
VICE CHAIR, MASS TORT LITIGATION

Eric Losey focuses his practice on defending personal injury, property damage, and environmental cases, including asbestos, mass tort, and product liability litigation. He represents a diverse range of clients in asbestos litigation across the country in both state and federal courts, from Fortune 500 manufacturing corporations and multinational companies to smaller regional businesses. Eric has extensive knowledge in handling complex litigation at all stages, from pre-suit evaluation through discovery disputes, corporate and expert depositions, trial, and verdict.

In addition, Eric has significant experience and passion for working with foreign entities, particularly Korean-based businesses seeking to enter the United States market. He represents various corporate clients, including start-ups as well as established companies involved in life sciences and manufacturing, facilitating Eckert Seamans' role as outside general counsel. Eric leads these efforts by providing business counseling and intellectual property advice, addressing the unique needs of each client through the comprehensive subject matter expertise of a full-service law firm.
