Jenna P. Torres

MEMBER

Jenna Torres concentrates her practice in intellectual property, particularly the prosecution and litigation of trademarks in the US and internationally.

Jenna helps clients both large and small build and protect their trademark portfolios around the world, performing trademark clearance searches (including for pharmaceutical brand and generic names), advising on filing and maintaining applications as well as proper trademark use, drafting license agreements, coexistence agreements, and consents, overcoming USPTO refusals of all types, conducting IP diligence for merger and acquisition transactions and drafting and filing resulting assignment documents, conducting brand policing and diligence into potential infringement, litigating and defending oppositions and cancellations before the USPTO Trademark Trial and Appeal Board and litigating and defending federal trademark and unfair competition infringement actions. Jenna also works with a trusted network of foreign attorneys to coordinate strategies in multiple jurisdictions and grow, manage, and protect clients' interests abroad, including protection from bad faith filers and counterfeiting.

In addition, Jenna provides services in matters dealing with copyright, such as advice on filing copyright applications, fair use issues, publishing agreements and licensing, as well as litigating and defending copyright infringement actions in federal court. Jenna has also worked on domain name issues and UDRP complaints and trademark and copyright issues involving social media and ecommerce websites.

Jenna is active in the International Trademark Association, serving on the Emerging Issues committee, drafting articles for the INTA Bulletin, acting as moderator for local roundtables, and presenting table topics at the annual meeting.

Prior to joining private practice, Jenna served as a judicial fellow for The Honorable Marlene F. Lachman of the First Judicial District of Pennsylvania, Court of Common Pleas, Civil Division.

Jenna serves as the firm's Philadelphia representative for the Women's Initiative at Eckert (WIE).
