Harrison Kaplan

MEMBER

Harrison Kaplan concentrates his practice in the area of product liability, mass tort litigation, and commercial litigation matters. He represents companies in litigation matters both locally and nationally. Harrison also has experience resolving business disputes for clients involving commercial contract disputes and financial services.

In addition, Harrison serves as national coordinating counsel in asbestos litigation matters for an international manufacturer of HVAC equipment. In this role, he works directly with experts and corporate witnesses to develop defenses and litigation strategies employed throughout the country. As a result of his role coordinating complex asbestos litigation, Harrison advises companies on a variety of matters related to nationwide issues affecting the defense and resolution of such cases. He provides proactive solutions aimed at reducing potential liability and exposure to clients.

Harrison serves on the Board of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Federal Bar Association, where he is involved with organizing various events and programs for the Massachusetts legal community, ranging from the premier Annual Judicial Reception to the ever-popular Breakfast with the Bench series.

Prior to joining Eckert Seamans, Harrison worked in legal aid, primarily defending evictions in Boston Housing Court. He supported individuals in times of crisis, often in complex circumstances against large housing companies, and gained invaluable experience defending his clients in all stages of litigation.
